Legal basis for processing

Legitimate interest

Purpose of processing personal data

The purpose of the register is to guarantee the security of the company's websites.

The information obtained (IP address) is only used in the event of a fault or in connection with the investigation of data breaches.

The basis for processing is legitimate interest and, in the case of cookies and similar tracking technologies, consent.

Legitimate interest basis

The controller must process personal data in order to perform business-related tasks. In this context, the processing of personal data cannot necessarily be justified by a legal obligation or a contract with an individual.

In the balancing test, the controller has determined that legitimate interest is the most appropriate basis for processing in relation to the nature, scope of the processing and the exercise of the rights and freedoms of the data subjects.

The controller has assessed that the legitimate interest does not cause serious harm to the rights and freedoms of the individuals (data subjects) concerned.

Personal data categories in question

IP address, visit time and pages.

Recipients and recipient groups

Limited, authorized personnel of the company providing the website hosting server.

Consent

Consent is given via a banner on the website and can be revoked via the "cookie settings" section.

Data content of the register

The personal register contains the following information:

- IP address
- Roaming time
- Pages visited by the visitor

Regular data sources

Information is obtained from the customer's roaming on the organization's website.

Retention period of personal data

The information is never separately deleted.

Regular disclosure of data

The information in the register is only for the company's use, except when using an external service provider, for their use.

The information is not disclosed outside the company or to its partners, except in connection with data breaches and the like.

Transfer of data outside the EU or EEA

The information in the register is not regularly disclosed outside the EU or EEA. However, it is possible that service providers outside the EU/EEA are used in the processing or that the service providers' clouds are located outside the EU/EEA, in which case the SCC standard clauses are used as the basis for the data transfer and additional safeguards have been implemented in the data transfers, such as internal instructions (on pseudonymisation of personal data and the like) and possibly a TIA analysis if the situation requires it.

When an organisation processing personal data has committed to the EU-US Data Protection Framework (DPF), the basis for the transfer is then that for the duration of its validity.

Register protection principles B: Electronic material

Only designated employees of the organization and companies acting on its behalf are entitled to use the website maintenance server.

Each designated user has their own personal username and password. Each user has signed a confidentiality agreement.

The system is protected by a firewall that protects external contacts to the system.

The protection and processing of the register data complies with the provisions and principles of the Data Protection Act, official regulations and good data processing practice.

Cookies

We use cookies on our website. A cookie is a small text file that is sent to the user's computer and stored there. Cookies do not harm the users' computers or files. The primary purpose of using cookies is to improve and customize the visitor's user experience on the website and to analyze and improve the functionality and content of the website.

Information collected through cookies can also be used to target communications and marketing and to optimize marketing efforts. Visitors cannot be identified using cookies alone. However, information obtained through cookies can be linked to information that may have been obtained from the user in other contexts, for example when the user fills out a form on our website.

The following information is collected using cookies:

- the visitor's IP address
- the time of the visit
- the pages viewed and the times they were viewed
- the visitor's browser

Your rights

A user visiting our website has the option to block the use of cookies at any time by changing their settings in the cookie banner. Some browser programs also allow the cookie function to be disabled and cookies that have already been saved to be deleted.

Blocking the use of cookies may affect the functionality of the website.

Right of inspection, i.e. the right to access personal data

The data subject has the right to check what information about him or her is stored in the register. The request for inspection must be made from an identifiable email address to the contact point of the controller.

Right to transfer data from one system to another

When legitimate interest is used as the basis for processing, the data subject does not have the right to transfer their data from one system to another.

Right to demand correction of data

Personal data in the register that are incorrect, unnecessary, incomplete or outdated in relation to the purpose of the processing must be corrected, deleted or supplemented.

A request for correction must be made from an identifiable email address to the contact point of the controller.

The request must specify which data is required to be corrected and on what basis. The correction will be carried out without delay.

The person from whom the incorrect data was received or to whom the data was disclosed will be notified of the correction of the error. If a request for correction is denied, the person responsible for the register will issue a written certificate stating the reasons for the denial of the request for correction. The interested party may refer the denial to the Data Protection Ombudsman.

Right to restriction

The data subject has the right to request restriction of data processing, e.g. if the personal data in the register are incorrect. Contacts must be made from an identifiable email address to the controller's contact point.

Right to object

The data subject has the right to request personal data concerning him or her and the data subject has the right to request rectification or deletion of personal data. Requests must be made from an identifiable email address to the controller's contact point.

If you act as a contact person for a company or organization, your data cannot be deleted during this period.

Right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority

If you consider that the processing of personal data concerning you has violated the Data Protection Regulation, you have the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority.

You can also lodge a complaint in the Member State where you have your permanent residence or place of work.

The contact details of the national supervisory authority are:

Office of the Data Protection Commissioner
